A conference organised by
Women, Management, Work Conference (WMWC) will explore how you can practice inclusive leadership in an organisational environment to drive collaboration and career growth. WMWC will ignite discussions on how to foster group-think and a shared vision through collective intelligence.

This Macquarie University initiative focuses on delivering innovative ideas of leadership and progressive management concepts, promotes women to advance their career and further their contribution in the workplace by offering know-hows to achieve this and presents insights from thought leaders, along with case studies from experts, making this a valuable conference for ambitious and connected professionals. WMWC is unique for its inclusiveness of women and men.

With a mix of interactive presentations and two special masterclasses led by dynamic leaders, this one-day conference is a chance to gain practical skills to apply in the workplace. It also provides inspiring perspectives from industry experts who embrace transformative leadership.
